The differences in Type A or Type B personality based on the birth order between the first child and the last child. (Sandy Kartasasmita, M. Psi.); Program Study of Psychology, Undergraduate Degree Program, 70 pages, P1 - P5.

Most people do not believe that birth order is really matter and can effect of someone's personality. But for the other people, birth order is not just an order of someone who was born in a family. More than that, birth order can effect many things like personality, attitude that was performed, and also the way of someone interpret his/her experience. In here, not the birth order itself that can effect the personality but the situation or treatment that was accepted by that people because of born in some order. The different situation or treatment from parents that can be seen clearly between the first child and the last child. All responsibility and demand that parents give to the first child tend to make them Type A than the last child. So this research try to search is there any different between the first child and the last child in Type A personality. Based on the result with Mann Whitney, had obtained score  $U(100,100) = 4,402.50$ ,  $p > .05$ , so that Null Hypothesis ( $H_0$ ) was accepted. So there is no significantly differences between the first child and the last child in Type A or Type B personality.
