

ABSTRACT

Sintha Primawati

Corellation family support and psychological well-being in disabled young adults (in Polio cases at Panti X). (Dra. Yulia Suryanggana Singgih dan Mardiana, Psi.); Bachelor degree in Tarumanagara University major Psychology. (pages 1-66, R1-R5, App 1-102).

Family support is some kind of social support which is giving emotional support such as: attention, take and give, and emphaty to family members. Psychological well-being is someone who can feel prosperity in psychological that believing him/her self has a good potencial and can develop it. The experiment to known correlation family support with psychological well-being to disabled young adults. Data was obtained from 55 adults in 21-40 years old that stay in Panti Sosial Bina Daksa (PSBD) Budi Bhakti Cengkareng, Jakarta in 2007 Result of the data got from questionnaire and did the analyst using Spearman RHO correlation in SPSS 12 edition. The result of experiment give the correlation family support with psychological well-being to disabled young adults. $r = +0,562$ ($p = 0,000 < = 0,01$).

Key Word: Family Support, Psychological well-being, Disabled, Young Adults.

