- (E) Abstract: This study was conducted to analyze the merge-bank performance in Indonesia. Bank performance is measured by return on risk weighted asset, considering the risk bank has created in order to get some profit. This study use regression and comparison to observe the impact of profitability, asset quality, capital, liquidity, and small business financing on the merge-bank performance. The sample is limited to national and joint venture commercial bank that merge between 2004-2009. The findings of this study showed that merger diminishing bank resilience, but on the other side the bank performance is better. Merger has increased bank business value and diminished the gap between banks.
